The SPEECH of His Excellency

Robert Johnſon, Eſq;

Governor of South-Carolina, at his firſt Meeting the General Aſſembly there, Jan. 22, 1730.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen,

THE King Our Royal Maſter having been pleaſed to appoint Me his Governor of this His Province, I took the firſt Opportunity (after receiving his Royal Commands) to repair hither; where on my Arrival finding an Aſſembly newly elected which had never ſat to do any Buſineſs; conſidering how ſhort a Time there will be for a Seſſion, before the Seaſon of the Year will make you deſire to be at your ſeveral Plantations, and how much Time a new Election would require, and truſting intirely in the good Diſpoſition you would meet in, to do what ſhould be found neceſſary for ſettling and promoting the good of the Province, I choſe rather to meet you at this Time, not in the leaſt doubting but you will confirm my good Opinion of you, by chearfully and unanimouſly proceeding in Conjunction with His Majeſty's Council, to concert ſuch Meaſures as may effectually put this Province in a flouriſhing Condition, which is capable of being under his Majeſty's Influence and Protection, one of the moſt conſiderable on the Main Land.

Gentlemen of the Council and Aſſembly,

His Majeſty out of his great Goodneſs and fatherly Care of you, and at the earneſt Requeſt and Solicitations of yourſelves, has been graciouſly pleaſed at a great Expence to purchaſe Seven Eighths of the late Lord Proprietors Charter, whereby you are become under his immediate Government; a Bleſſing and Security we have been long praying and ſolicitous of, the good Effects of which we daily Experience by the Safety we enjoy, as well in our Trade by the Protection of his Ships of War, as by Land by an Independent Company maintained purely for our Safety and Encouragement. The taking off the Enumeration of Rice is a peculiar Favour, therefore if we obſtruct not our own Intereſt, we may be a happy People, and which, I am perſuaded you will think obliges us to a chearful and ready Obedience to his Majeſty's Commands, which are only calculated to improve this Colony, and you will return your humble and unfeigned Thanks for his particular Care and Concern for you.

His Majeſty has been graciouſly pleaſed to grant me ſufficient Powers to join with you and conſent to ſuch Laws as may beſt contribute to this good End; and I doubt not but that as I am very well known to you all, you will have ſo juſt an Opinion of me, as not to doubt but I ſhall ſo do, tho' it were not my own Intereſt by ſo great a Part of my private Fortune being here; which tho' it may very reaſonably be thought ſome Engagement, yet I take this Opportunity to aſſure you is the leaſt Motive to induce me to do all in my Power to further the Proſperity of a Province in which I have paſt ſo great a Part of my Life, and which in my private Capacity I have always done both by my ſelf and Friends, whom I happily engaged, and did intereſt themſelves in a very particular and diſtinguiſhing Manner, in procuring the Good and Intereſt thereof; and if any Perſons deſire to oblige me, the moſt effectual Way will be by doing what in them lies to promote the publick Welfare, eſtabliſh the publick Credit, paying the Provincial Debts, now near four Years in Arrears, and in the beſt Manner provide for its future Welfare and Security; and (if any do ſtill ſubſiſt) forget all former Animoſities, and contend only for the future who ſhall ſhew themſelves the beſt and moſt grateful Subjects to his Majeſty, the beſt Patriots and the moſt diſintereſted in any Thing but the Peace, Good and Proſperity of the Province.

As I have his Majeſty's Royal Commands, ſo I muſt enjoin you in your ſeveral Stations to ſee that all the Laws now in Force againſt Immorality and Impiety be ſtrictly put in Execution, and if there be any Defect in the Laws already made for this Purpoſe, you ſhall not not want my Assistance to Enact such others as may best conduce to this desirable End. And that Principles of this Nature may be inculcated and transmitted to our Posterity, I cannot omit putting you in mind of taking particular Care to promote and encourage the publick Schools of this Province (particularly) that near Charlestown, for the Edification of our Youth; I am desirous to give you the earliest Assurances, that I shall be always ready to lend my helping Hand to any Encouragement you shall think necessary for such laudable Foundations.

Gentlemen of the Lower-House.

I have ordered the King's Treasurer to lay before you a State of the Debts of this Province, as far as they are come to his Knowledge; the Payment of which I must now again recommend to you to provide for, and I shall be ready to concur with you in the most effectual way of so doing: I must also desire you to provide for the ordinary and contingent Expences of the current Year.

I have given Directions to the Clerk of his Majesty's Council, to lay before you an authentick Copy of the 32d and 33d Articles of the Instructions I have had the Honour to receive from his Majesty, to be communicated to you at your first Meeting, relating to the Support of his Governors and other Officers in this Province. From the entire Confidence I have in your Loyalty and Gratitude to his most sacred Majesty, I doubt not but it will have its due Weight with you; and therefore I hope I have no Manner of Occasion to say any Thing more to inforce it.

The ruinous Condition of the Fortifications of Charlstown and Johnson's Fort and others, require your immediate Attention to put in Repair. I was not wanting in my Applications to his Majesty, to be supply'd with necessary Stores of War for this Province; and such Progress was made in it before I departed, that I have Reason to believe his Majesty will add that Favour to the many others he has in a particular and expensive Manner bestowed upon Carolina.

His Majesty was graciously pleased to order the Right Honourable the Lords of Trade, &c. on His behalf to settle Articles of Peace and Friendship with the Cherokee Indians in behalf of the whole Nation, whom by his Majesty's Order I brought safe back, with a considerable Present to engage them in Friendship and Obedience to this Government. They are on their way home with the Present, and protected in the Manner they themselves desired. The Treaty shall be laid before you. We can't be too careful to keep the Indians our Friends.

I have further to add to you, that his Majesty has been pleased to instruct and to incourage as much as in me lies, the Improvement of such Manufactures as may be advantageous to this Province, and useful to the Kingdom of Great Britain. The Parliament has given a Bounty on Hemp already, and I should think with some additional Encouragement by a Law of this Place, it might be brought to good Perfection, as might also Silk: If any Thing else will be found necessary for the Advantage of this Province, you shall not want my Assistance and Concurrence.

R. JOHNSON.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

PARIS, Sept. 8. N. S.

WE see here Letters from Languedoc, which advise that the Intendant of the Episcopal City of Nismes, accompanied by M. Diverny, who commands in the Absence of the Governor Marquis de la Fare, has been at Montpelier, to receive some Orders from the King: That having received them accordingly he returned to Nismes, and shut in the Town with some Troops drawn from the neighbouring Places: That about an Hour after this was done, the Gates were opened for the Troops to march in: That thereupon the Soldiers entred the City with their Bayonets in the Muzzels of their Muskets, and dividing themselves in several Parties, secured the Avenues to the principal Streets. That the Intendant then acquainted the Magistrates, That it was the King's Will and Pleasure that all the Protestants Houses should be searched, and their Books and Arms taken away; to wit, their Carnal and Spiritual Weapons: That the Magistrates, in Obedience to his Majesty's Commands, nominated M. Desigues and several Officers of Justice to execute the said Order: That at break of Day the next Morning, the Revillez was beat, and the Inhabitants were forbid to stir out of their Houses, or to look thro' their Windows, upon Pain of Death: That then the Search was begun by the Persons abovenamed, supported by Soldiers with their Bayonets fixed as before: That they found very few Arms among the Protestants; and those chiefly Pistols for travelling, Swords and Fowling-pieces; all which were carried to the Citadel: That they found at the Advocate Rousiere's 75 Latin Books, and at Monsieur Blan's a pretty good Library; but very few Books besides, and not above 30 Bibles in all: That all these Books and Bibles were carried to the great Square before the Town-House and burnt by the Hands of the Common Hangman: That there never was such a general Search before, nor such a rigorous Execution, in the Memory of Man: That the City Gates were kept shut, upon this Occasion, from 11 o' Clock at Night 'till 10 the next Morning: And that nevertheless there was not any Murmuring or Discontent observable among the Protestants.----Gran pro, says the Italian.

LONDON, Novemb. 14.

By an Express from Constantinople, and by Letters of the 12th of October, we have the following Advice, that the new Sultan had made a Son-in-Law of the deposed Sultan,

Prime

Prime Vizer; a very learned and intelligent Perſon, Reis Effendi; and another Son-in-Law of the late Sultan's (who is about 26 Years of Age, and was bred up in the Seraglio) Captain-Baſhaw: That none of theſe can however depend upon the Continuance of their Fortune, becauſe upon the 12th of October when the Expreſs came away, the Rebels were increaſed to 100,000 Men, and no Body knew what might be the Conſequence of the Inſurrection. Mean while, they ſeem'd to obſerve a pretty ſtrict Diſcipline; for (except the Prime Vizier, the Reis-Effendi, and the Captain Baſhaw who were ſtrangled) they had done no Body any harm, nor taken any Thing by Violence.---- Juſt as this Expreſs was preparing to come away, a dreadful Fire broke out in that Suburb, which already conſumed 2000 Houſes, and was burning when he ſet out.

Extract of a Letter from an Engliſh Gentleman at Conſtantinople, Decemb. 6.

On the 14th paſt the Grand Seignor, under Pretence of holding a general Council, got all the Chief of the Rebels into his Palace, and cut them all off with their Servants, and it is ſaid about 7000 of their Followers have been ſince ſtrangled, to the great Joy of the City; for they were grown ſo inſolent, as to tax Families what Sums they pleaſed, and even plunder in the Streets: But now every Thing is reduced to the old Ottoman Rules of Government, which we don't doubt will be much for the Advancement of Trade, and encreaſe the Conſumption of our Manufactures. The Turks have Thoughts of ſending Embaſſadors to England, France and Holland.

Jan. 28. Yeſterday the Court received an Account of the Death of the Duke of Parma; that the Dutcheſs, his Widow, had declared herſelf 4 Months gone with Child; that the Duke had made a Will in Favour of Don Carlos, declaring him lawful Heir to his Dominions in failure of Male Iſſue by his ſaid Dutcheſs; and that the Dutcheſs had likewiſe made another Will to the ſame Purport with the Duke's in Don Carlos's Favour. And Letters from Paris by Thurſday's Mail, ſay, that a Body of Imperialiſts, to the Number of 10,000. had taken Poſſeſſion of the Dutchies of Parma and Placentia, on Pretence of the Dutcheſs being with Child. Some Advices from Italy affirm, that the Duke of Tuſcany is likewiſe dangerouſly ill.

Febr. 4. Yeſterday her Majeſty was cupp'd and blooded for a violent Cold.

Capt. Brooks, in the Anne, left Gibraltar the 12th paſt, when the Spaniards before that Place were carrying on their Fortifications with the utmoſt Diligence, about 1500 Men being kept conſtantly at Work.

Feb. 11. The Lord Baltimore and his Lady are preparing to go to Maryland, in his Lordſhip's own Ship.

The Lord Vere Beauclerk, Brother to his Grace the Duke of St. Albans, and Repreſentative in Parliament for the Borough of New Windſor, is appointed Governor of a large Tract of Land in New-England.

Boſton, March 29. We have Advice from Barbadoes, that James O Haroe Lord Tyrawley, is appointed their Governor. PHILADELPHIA, April 8.

On Monday laſt died at Cheſter, the Honourable David Lloyd, Eſq; chief Judge of this Province, in a very advanc'd Age; and was inter'd Yeſterday.

From Lewis Town we have an Account of the following unfortunate Accident, which happened on the 20th paſt at Indian River, viz. One Groome who kept the Ferry, croſſing in his Flat with 3 Horſes, and 8 or 9 Paſſengers, the Flat fill'd and ſunk in the middle of the River; He and his Son who row'd with him, were both drowned, together with four others who could not ſwim. There were two Women in the Flat, one with a Child at her Breaſt; this Woman was ſaved by a young Man, who ſwam with her to a Stake, by which ſhe held till a Canoe came to her Aſſiſtance; but not being able to keep the Child's Head above Water, it periſhed in her Arms: The other, having got hold of the Tail of one of the Horſes, held faſt while he ſwam and drew her ſafe to Shore. One of the Men drowned was a Pedlar; his Companion who travell'd with him, ſeeing the Flat ſo full, refus'd to go in, but ſent his Goods, which were all loſt.

Your Friend and Servant, M. M.

NO more a willing Muſe her Aid beſtows,
My Verſe inglorious as my Fortune grows;
Yet ſtill my Boſome heaves, and ſtill I long
To rouze my Genius, and improve my Song.
Thou ſacred Father of the tuneful Nine,
For once my Breaſt inſpire, my Thoughts refine,
And make my Numbers like Yourſelf divine.
See, ſee, the Delian God his Poet owns,
Shakes heavenly Domes, and bows cæleſtial Thrones;
Himſelf deſcends to guide the ſounding Lays,
And crown his favourite with immortal Bays:
Let all who hope to tread the Laureat Grove
Applaud the Youth whom Phœbus deigns to love;
Bnt oh! you Grov'lers round Parnaſſus, you,
A while withdraw, at awful Diſtance view,
Nor touch the Mountain leſt the God break through.
The Song begins, and all inſpir'd I rove
O'er the bright Manſions of almighty Jove;
Great as a God, from Orb to Orb I ſtray,
And tread with daring Steps, th' Olympick Way
Adorn'd with Suns, and Stars, and Light and endleſs Day.
High o'er the reſt Heaven's great Pantheon ſtands,
The Dædal Work of Mulciberian Hands:
Deſcription might amuſe, but nothing ſhew,
For heavenly Fanes are not like Fanes below:
'Tis hence the Deity Mankind controlls,
The Lightning vibrates, and the Thunder rolls.
'Twas here I ſaw the ſacred Council ſat,
Weighing of Kingdoms in the Scales of Fate;
'Till the great Thunderer riſing from his Chair
Thus ſpoke, " O Powers, O Dominations hear;
Genies, and Demi-Gods, attentive prove,
And learn the firm Reſolves of Fate and Jove:
Mean time the Hills were ſhook, the Mountains nod,
And Heaven, and Earth, confeſs'd the ſpeaking God.
Who thus went on; See how contending Powers
Heſperian Realms diſturb, Italian Towers:
Yet ſoon the Clarion ſhall be made to ceaſe,
Since GEORGE, and CAROLINA, call for Peace;
They more than we o'er Europe's Weal preſide,
And Fortune follows where they pleaſe to guide:
Happy the Land on which the Royal Pair
Their choiceſt Hours employ, their tendreſt Care.
O Britain, greatly bleſs'd! diſmiſs thy Fears,
For tho' 'tis true in long revolving Years
Thy King and Queen ſhall quit their low abodes
And mount, and mingle with their kindred Gods:
Yet from their Influence ſhall freſh Bleſſings flow,
And ſtill their Offspring ſhall protect below.
Or ſay that Time brings on the diſtant Day,
When preſent Empires like the paſt decay,
And even Europa's Glory melts away;
Tho' far, far Weſt, beneath the ſetting Sun
Shall Heroes riſe, and mighty Deeds be done;
Yet round thy Temples ſhall freſh Laurels twine,
Favourite of all the Gods! but chiefly mine!

Still

Still ſhall thy dreaded Fleets triumphant ſail
To aid thy Friends, or o'er thy Foes prevail;
Tho' diſtant Kingdoms riſe, yet every Throne
Shall bow to Thee, and Thee the Parent own.
See then, exulting ſee, already Fame
Begins thy PHILADELPHIA to proclaim:
Scarce does thy own Auguſta fairer ſeem,
And ſcarce thy Thames affords a nobler Stream;
Whate'er can furniſh Luxury or Uſe
The Sea can bring her, or her Land produce.
'Tis mine and Heaven's Reſolve to make her great,
Be it thy Glory to concur with Fate,
And kindly nurſe a while her Infant-State.
And ye Pow'rs tutelar, that ſhed around
Your various Favours on the teeming Ground,
Let this new Land employ your utmoſt Care,
Let her the choiceſt of your Bleſſings ſhare,
And in Columbus World the brighteſt Lawrel wear:
While thou raſh Bard, (who thus preſum'd to ſtray
O'er awful Gulphs, and tread the Milky Way,
Daring to liſten what the Godheads ſay,)
Return to Earth, and let thy only Lays
Be tun'd to Songs of PHILADELPHIA's Praiſe;
This done, even thou perhaps mayſt riſe to Fame,
And ſpread thy own, with Pennſylvania's Name.
Thus ſpoke the God; when thrice it thundred loud,
And thrice the Lightning flaſh'd without a Cloud,
And thrice attending Powers with awful Reverence bow'd.
And now would Philadelph' accept the Lay,
How gladly would the Bard, the God obey;
How oft tranſported ſound the pleaſing Theme;
And ſing her Buildings, or her cryſtal Stream!
Bound o'er her Hills, or tread the flowery Vale,
Or in more lofty Strains her Patriots hail?
At leaſt permit my Fancy now to rove,
I ſee the promis'd Hours already move,
And all her Glories haſtening down from Jove.
For this was GORDON choſe from all Mankind,
And to the great intended Work aſſign'd;
Heaven ſaw his Worth, and knew his Guardian Care,
Would gently lead along the tender Fair;
Which he has well perform'd, and now ſhe ſhines
Bright as Bermudas ſeems in Waller's Lines.
(Tho' there the Bard the Force of Numbers knew,
And paints ten Thouſand Beauties more than true.)
O GORDON! Thou who merits all our Praiſe,
Permit thy Name to dignify my Lays.
But who is He, whom PHILADELPHIA's Shore
Claims as her Son, yet long his Abſence bore;
Who now to bleſs his native Land appears;
Of Wit and Judgment ripe, in blooming Years;
Yet of his Worth not conſcious or elate,
Rich without Pride, without Ambition Great:
'Twas He that rais'd my drooping Muſe anew;
This Verſe at leaſt to Gratitude is due.
I know he wants not me to chant his Fame,
Yet none can ſure th' officious Poet blame,
Who ſwells his humble Song with ALLEN's Name.
Hail all ye Patriots, firm in Virtue's Cauſe,
Gladly the Youth would pay deſerv'd Applauſe;
But Pegaſus no more the Heat maintains,
See the tir'd Courſer pants in airy Plains:
Yet he refreſh'd again may ſtretch the Wing,
And I once more attempt the ſounding String,
So you deſcend to hear me while I ſing.
